ABSTRACT

Two hundred fifty-one fiction and non-fiction books published between 1938 and 1968 are listed in this annotated bibliography for those interested in the Afro-American experience. The books are divided according to reading level, from kindergarten to adult. There are also annotated listings of nine picture sets, seven puzzles, five wooden figures, and a multi-media kit for children. Further annotated listings of 19 films, 13 records, seven pamphlets, and five magazines are divided by age level. Lists of 14 related bibliographies and of publishers' addresses are supplied. (RT)

The books listed in this bibliography have been reviewed and selected as being the best available materials for building positive attitudes.

No books which perpetuate negative racial stereotpyes were included.

This is a revised edition of the bibliography A Bibliography of Negro Life prepared by the Human Relations Committee, in the Curriculum Resource Center, Hay Elementary School, Clarence Bledsoe, Mrs. Margaret Curry, Mildred Hume, Mrs. Mary Lake, Gayle Marko, and Mrs. Joan Williamson. The curriculum Resource Center was a program of the Youth Development Project of the Community Health and Welfare Council, Hennepin County, Inc. This program was supported by the Minneapolis Public Schools and by a grant from the President's Committee on Juvenile Delinquency and Youth Crime. July, 1965.

The revised edition is sponsored by the Superintendent's Special Committee on Contributions of Minorities, Helen E. Stub, Consultant in Instructional Materials, chairman, Minneapolis Public Schools, John B. Davis, Jr., Superintendent.

Published with the cooperation of the Publications Office, Minneapolis Public Schools, Robert Fausch, Consultant.

Prices are list prices unless otherwise indicated.

Books that realistically portray Negro life for children in the United States and other lands can perform a unique function in developing in children an awareness of the feelings, experiences, and attitudes of people different from themselves. They can prepare children to meet and understand people whose cultural traditions are unlike their own; and they can inspire Negro children to take pride in their own racial heritage and enable them to better understand themselves.*
